RESULTS National Webinar

November 2, 2024

Welcome!

Our Values

The logo for RESULTS, featuring the word "results" in white lowercase letters inside a red speech bubble shape.

At RESULTS we pledge to create space for all voices, including those of us who are currently experiencing poverty. We will address oppressive behavior in our interactions, families, communities, work, and world. Our strength is rooted in our diversity of experiences, not in our assumptions.

With unearned privilege comes the responsibility to act so the burden to educate and change doesn't fall solely on those experiencing oppression. When we miss the mark on our values, we will acknowledge our mistake, seek forgiveness, learn, and work together as a community to pursue equity.

Read our full anti-oppression values statement here at results.org/values.

Welcome!

- Possibilities: 1-year or some other short term extension

- Goal: Continue to set the stage for expectations on CTC expansion in the 2025 bill using the Wyden/Smith bill as new baseline

Renters Tax Credit

- We are working with congressional champions and coalition partners to finalize language for a new RTC bill to be introduced early next Congress

Editor,

Thanks to the Cascadia Daily News for creating a set of citizen-inspired questions for candidates at both the local and state/national levels (CDN, Aug. 8, 2024).

After candidates weigh in on these questions, voters can cast an informed ballot. Then after the election comes, our followup to make sure they walk their talk. In addition, we can ask the local level and the state/national level officials to work together.

For example, in affordable housing, often great ideas come from the local levels but need the state/national level cooperation in the form of funding [to] help make solutions possible. At the same time, local poverty issues are often solved by tax reforms, like the expanded child tax credit that cut child poverty nearly in half, until Congress failed to renew it.

Our job as citizens is to make sure our elected officials at all levels follow through on these and other critical initiatives.

I GOT HELP. NOW I GIVE BACK. THAT'S HOW A HEALTHY SOCIETY SHOULD WORK.

if lawmakers slash the social safety net any further, millions of stories like mine won't be possible.

By Sharvonne A. Walker | May 29, 2024

Life is unpredictable. And sometimes, no matter how hard you work, life throws curve balls that hit you in the gut.

That's what our tax dollars are supposed to be for – a helping hand when we're most in need. More than once in my life, the social safety net came through for my family. And thanks to that help, we're able to give back today.

My mother worked hard as a carpenter and educator for most of the years I was growing up. But her income just wasn't enough to pay for rent, food, childcare, and other basic needs.

Thankfully, she kept us fed with WIC (the Women, Infants, and Children nutrition assistance program), SNAP (then called "food stamps"), and frequent visits to food pantries. And after living in a shelter for the first three years of my life, we were able to get An Oregon resident was diagnosed with the plague. Here are some things to know.

REPORTS OF THE bubonic plague in our Western states ("An Oregon resident is 'plagued,'" published online Feb. 10) is a reminder that infectious diseases are still about them or not.

Two diseases far more common than the plague and on the rise are bubonic continued funding support from Congress to fight them in the U.S. and in the world.

Erdmann: Tell Congress to protect – or even strengthen – SNAP benefits

JULY 2024 2:00PM EDT

Today's dominant economic theory assumes that people always act in their own self-interest, accumulating as much as possible for the least effort. Interestingly, research suggests that, as college students follow a curriculum based on this assumption, they become less cooperative with their peers and less generous.

In contrast, study after study shows that people who are struggling most will often be the most generous, even to the point of self-sacrifice. This counterintuitive goes back at least to biblical times, as reflected in Jesus' story of "the widow's mite."

Widely cited in the face of modern economic assumption.

To the Editor:

I remember standing on a street corner in downtown Fargo, being struck by what I didn't see: there were no homeless people living on the street. It was 1980. I had recently returned to North Dakota after teaching in an American school in Pakistan for fifteen months. There I had come to expect to encounter the desperate homeless as a regular feature in the city. On my return home, I was grateful not to see a single person who had no choice but to sleep outside.

Fast-forward four decades, and we have the U.S. Supreme Court "City of Grants Pass v. Johnson" decision of allowing cities to outlaw homelessness without solving it. We have come to a place in U.S. criminal. People a symptom of the costs and increasing
