KNOW THE ISSUES

Problem: 9 out of 10 people in low-income countries are being forced to wait years for a COVID-19 vaccine

- Vaccines can end this virus but we are not producing enough to reach the global community
- High-income countries like the US have dominated the consumption of vaccines and have already purchased the world's supply of vaccines through 2022
- 60% of people in high-income countries have received at least one dose of COVID vaccine, compared to 1% of people in low-income countries
- While people in the US are navigating our 're-entry' into society, many low-income countries are facing a new wave of lockdowns.

Problem: The United States is facing an affordable housing crisis that affects millions of people

- Housing is a human right. Everyone should have a safe place to call home.
- Unfortunately, millions of Americans are one crisis away from eviction and potential homelessness.
- While rents have steadily been increasing, wages have not kept up.
- Discriminatory housing policies put some at higher risk of homelessness (For example: Communities of Black, Indigenous, and people of color, people with disabilities)
- Rental assistance is critically underfunded and is only available for 1 in every 4 households who qualify.

LEARN THE SOLUTIONS

A global pandemic requires a global response, and we must ensure equitable access to vaccines around the world. Through U.S. leadership increasing vaccine manufacturing and supply, we can ensure low-income countries receive life-saving vaccines and bring an end to the pandemic.

Access to affordable housing is critical. People with stable housing earn more, are healthier, and do better in school. By expanding housing choice vouchers to all eligible renters, we can lift 9 million people out of poverty, begin to close racial disparities in housing, and reduce homelessness.
