

Sharing your letter on social media

The #LettersGetLOUD campaign is an opportunity to raise your voice to Congress. If you're active on social media, we encourage you to take another step after you've written a letter. Try taking a video of yourself reading your letter out loud to a camera and share it. We'll show you how to get started!

1. A phone or computer camera would work well. Have a friend hold your camera, or do it yourself, selfie-style. It's okay if it's not Hollywood quality...getting your message across is the most important thing.
2. Make sure we can see you and hear you. Try to take the video in an area that's well-lit and quiet.
3. Don't be nervous...you're part of a community of advocates that care deeply about fighting poverty. We're all in this together!
4. Once you have your video all ready to go, upload the video to Twitter or Facebook. Feel free to use one of our templates below.
5. Use the hashtag #LettersGetLOUD in your tweet or post, and tag us at @RESULTS_Tweets. This way, anyone following the #LettersGetLOUD stream will see your posts and identify you with the letter writing campaign.
6. Make sure to tag your members of Congress. Your tweet will be seen by more people, and who knows, it might even make its way to your congressional office.
